

Helpful food and beverage BPA can lining report card for consumers

NJ Jaeger, LA Environmental Health Examiner
October 22nd, 2010 8:38 am PT

Emily Stone of Green Century Capital Management, co-author of a new report, Seeking Safer Packaging 2010, shows this year, 32% of companies surveyed had established internal timelines for phasing out BPA in packaging -- up from 7% with timelines in 2009.

Stone says "Our data shows that some companies in the food and beverage industry are wasting no time in transitioning out of bisphenol A (BPA) can linings.

Read more about the leaders and laggards in this report, "Seeking Safer Packaging 2010."

Nestlé	B
Sara Lee	C
McCormick	C
Campbell Soup	C
Kellogg	D+
Whole Foods	D+
Dean Foods	D+
Costco	D
Pepsico	D-
JM Smucker	D-
Coca Cola	F
Del Monte	F

New report shows leaders and laggards
Photo: Green Century Capital Management, Inc., As You Sow